An American Consul's Views.

A recent United States. Consular report gives some practical hints to traders desirous of extending business with China which, although they are directed, of course, to American business men, apply equally well to the merchants and manufacturers of other names. The consul (Mr Harry, L. Paddock, Amoy) writes :-In the first place goods which are ex. MEETING OF THE COMPANY, held ported to China solely to satisfy the ted for confirmation as a Special Resoludemands of the foreign element in China do not constitute a trade with China, but simply with a very small transient population; nor does this sort of trade, as so many of our manufacturors seem to think, stimulate the Chinese people to the adoption of American products. Merchants should bear in mind always that the Chinese people are poor; that labour is so cheap that it enters not at all into the cost of articles used by the Chinese; that the Chinese deal only in their business relations with those inwhom they have great confidence; and, above all things, that catering to the Oriental wante must be done by supplying, not Occidental, but Oriental articles. The comparative poverty of the Chinese is a great bar to the sale of foreign-made goods, signed, King's Buildings, Victoris, in the for our cost of production is so high that we cannot put an American made article on the market here that will be within the tions will be proposed :-financial reach of more than one out of one hundred natives. The introduction of American goods must be done through capable, tactful, and energetic agouts, who are also patient, and preferably those who know the Chinese character and speak the language. These agents must cultivate the friendship of the Chinaman, which friendship they will find strong and lasting, and then slowly educate the Chinaman to the advantages of American-made goods. This takes time and money, but the ultimate reward will more than repay the American firm that cares to attempt it. Finally, let American firms study the wants of the Chinese, and let them manu-

JAPAN'S PROGRAMME.

Proposed New Vessels.

A Tokyo message to the Mainichi states that the following are the principal warships to be built in the course of the Japanese Government's naval construction programme, which is to be carried out during seven years at a cost of year 76,500,000 :--

Two battleships, one armoured cruiser, two cruisers, three destroyers of large type, four destroyers, and two submarines. With regard to the construction of vessels to take the place of those which were lost in the war or which have been put on the reserve list as charlete, the vessels which have so far been built for these purposes, or which are now being built, are as follows:

Two battleships (the "Satsuma" and "Aki), "three armoured arusers (the "Tsukuba," "Ikoma," and "Kurama), two second class cruisers (the "Tone" and another), and two despatch-boats (the "Yodo" and "Mogami").

THE WRIGHTS' SECRET.

The American Flying Machine.

Few men have travelled more over the world in the study of aeronauties than Patrick Alexander, who on his return from America delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on aeroplanes and propellers before the menibers of the London Aero Club.

Mr Alexander is a great admirer of the work the brothers Wright have accomplished and had a model of their flying machine of 1904 in the lecture room with him. After his lecture a Herald correspondent had an interesting talk with Mr Alexander,

"The Wright brothers have now get a fine flying machine. I have seen it, and in my opinion they have solved the aerial problem. The Wrights are now working with two propellers, which run along at twelve horse power, but both brothers told me that, judging from the results they attained; six horse power was ample for a speed of thirty miles an hour.

"In 1904 they went with their machine around a field of seventy-five acres no fewer than thirteen times and guided it as they wished. They could travel also at the rate of sixty miles an hour. That is an achievement no one else has equalled, for the machine possessed lifting power, sustaining power and guidability. But they have made great advances since 1904. The Wrights believe in having propellers outside the body of the machine and seeing the results they have attained. think their idea is the best one I have ver met with. "In their recent experiments they have flown 160 miles altogether through the air This experience gives them confidence, and they are the most likely men I know t solve the problem of aerial navigation." "Can you tell me," I asked, "what the weight of Wright brothers' machine? "Well," said Mr Alexander, "I do not think it is generally known that it weight half a ton, and yet it goes through the air

comfortably at the rate of forty miles ar A SAFE REMEDY

REPORTS have been current for some time that the Hongkong Companies whom it was never intended to assist. neither possible nor desirable that the companies registered here should be solely British. Some of the best and most hardworking Directors on the Boards of local companies are not British subjects and it would certainly be a calamitous thing if legislation were passed to deprive the community say we are animated by no unworthy national prejudice but merely by a Sicawei a copy of the Storm Signal Redesire to point out a facility that the Ordinance offers to persons who may involve Great Britain in very serious complications. Any seven persons, whatever their nationality, may register a company under the Ordinance conditions. The Company may not have a single British subject upon the the directorate nor on the list of shareholders but the company upon registration is de facto a British comnominal, that is to say the company pays someone in Hongkong to hang a card outside his office intimating is within. Actually the company may have no other business association with Hongkong. This would be all

ENGLISH WEATHER.

Are Seasons Changing?

(From Our Correspondent.) LONDON, February 6.

Some months ago in one of the English magazines an interesting and spirited discussion took place on that most fruitful of all topics—the climate of this little Island. The opinion on the whole was favourable. I venture to suggest that if that same discussion had occurred in the winter majority would pronounced differently. The winter of 1906-1907 did not really begin till nearly Christmas and over since it has been making up for the milder weather that went before. One characteristic of the season has been the cold bitter winds-many an ol Hongkongito sitting shivering by the fireside has wished himself or herself back in the milder temperature of the island of Fragrant Streams.

The weather charts which are now quite a feature of the London papers enable one weather throughout the country. results upset some theories that have long held the field. For instance, most people have looked upon the south coast of England as certainly the warmest part of the whole country. Facts and figures scarcely bear this out. Instead of the south coast we shall have to go to Oban and the Western Islands of Scotland. During the recent blizzard which swept Great Britain, Stornoway had maximum temperature of 43 degs. compared with 35 degs. at Brighton and Bournemouth and Hastings. On the same date the minimum temperature experienced at Stornoway was 41 dege, at Hastings 30 cantile pursuits in Canton and is wolldege., Brighton 26 degs, and Bournemouth 24 degs. This difference in favour of Stornowsy has happened more than once. Should extended observation prove this to it is now being most successfully conducted will have an important bearing on is future as a probable winter resort.

There have been various rumours as to th state of the R.H.G.'s health, and I may say that to my eye he looked as brisk and ged hands in the earlier part of the week capable as he did ten years ago. Of course the recent death of his wife has affected him greatly, but he is of those who seek forgetfulness in hard work,—and for the most part find it. To all appearance, he demand but no sellers come forward, and the is strong enough to meet all the calls that the coming session of Parliament may make upon him, even although the list of measures he has to face is long and important.

Mr Haldano aroused intense indignation 1 Scotland when he announced that no more cavalry were to be stationed in Scotland, and that our only national regiment, the Scots Greys, were to be permanently withdrawn. There were abundant signs that during the coming session he would have to face the opposition, in this matter, of a practically solid phalanx of Scottish members. He has this week, however, skilfully turned the flank of his opponents by announcing that in the coming summer we will be treated to the biggest series or cavalry manoeuvres ever attempted North of the Tweed. In the Highland district which has been chosen, the Atholl country in Perthshire, there will be ample room variety of ground in hill and dale which cannot be equalled in Britain for the practice of scouting and other tactics. PASSENGER SERVICE.

By the new steamers Rhenania, Hubsburg and Hohenslaufen. These steamers offer to the public the highest comfort yet attained in ocean travelling. They are especially built for the tropics with very large well ventilated cabins, amidship, lighted throughout by electricity, fans provided in each cabin. The borths are not arranged one above the other as it has been the fashion hitherto, but the staterooms. closely resemble ordinary eleeping rooms on shore, the bertha standing like beds at either side of the cabins, " As a novelty, a number of cabins are provided for single passengers. These steamers call at Naples & Plymouth. In addition to the above steamers, the s.s. Silesia and Scaudia carry first-class passengers. Return Tickets issued at reduced rates, through tickets issued to New York, via Naples, Southampton and Hamburg.

ARMY RE-ORGANISATION,

Mr Haldano's Scheme.

Additional reports of Mr Haldane's army re-organisation scheme indicate that in future, the army will consist of a field force ready for mobilisation on an outbreak of war, and a territorial or home force composed of homogeneous militia, yeomaniy and volunteers capable of supporting and expanding into a field force, after six months' training. Mr Haldane hopes to be in a position shortly to maintain in the field four brigades of cavalry and six divisions of infantry; and also to have a force called a special contingent, recruited from the classes now enlisting in the existing militia and volunteer corps, who would engage to join the regulars on mobilisation.

This special contingent would be utilised principally for the animunition columns, the Army Service Corps, and the railways. Nearly 3500 officers and 75,000 men would be required for the special contingent re-cruited from the militia and volunteers. To repair wastage in time of war, for every pair of line battalions there would be maintained the nucleus of a third battalion. Mr Haldane's plan is to unite the whole of the anxiliary forces into one homogeneous body. Every man will be pald service rates while embodied or called out for train-The volunteers will be no longer separated from the militia, and the militia Of the Skin and Scalp Speedily Cured by Baths with principle of county organisation will govern the whole. Out of the existing material, the Army Council hope to obtain a fully organised force of fourteen infantry divisions and that fourteen cavalry brigades will be formed. The proposed county organisa-tion will be controlled by the Army Council, and the period of training will be fifteen days. Regulars mobilising 100,000 strong under present conditions would take the field 160,000 strong under the new scheme, and instead of being unorganised, militia yeomanry and volunteers would contribute an organised force of 300,000 men, costing annually £2,889,408, as compared with £4,431,210 for 371,971 auxiliarles under the present system. Enlistment of the contingents will be for four years, with power to withdraw on three months notice. They will be liable in the case of a great mobilisation of the country's forces to go into embodied war training for six months, after which he believed they would be thoroughly efficient and ready to volunteer for service in the divisions abroad or for home duty to garrision the fortresses and to repel raids. Mr Haldane agreed that it was a matter of speculation whether the auxiliary forces
